

Try Something New This Valentine's Day.

Valentine's Day isn't much fun when you are single. Don't torture yourself and spend it alone. Spend it with the Soulbergs and their creator Canadian-born artist Benson Simmonds who just happens to be in search of his soul mate.

"MEET and CRITIQUE". Throughout the evening, everyone will be asked to draw a number which will send you to a particular painting. Other people who draw the same number will be sent to look at the same painting. That way you will meet lots of different people and have fun talking about the paintings together....talk about a fun, no pressure way to meet someone!!

Come out and play.

Admission is FREE so worst case scenario - you look at some interesting art, have a hand-dipped chocolate strawberry and a glass of wine (or milk to go with a cookie) and make a new friend or two. There is even free parking.

Be ready and willing to meet someone new, come dressed in your most soul mate attracting outfit, and be prepared to have a great time in one of LA's hottest new galleries, Blue Five Art Space, an exciting new, multifaceted art space dedicated to launching the careers of artists and curators and the occasional match-making by Blue Five's director Nancy Larrew.

"Benson is a great catch and I'm determined to help him find his soul mate and expose people to his artwork. He is super talented abstract artist, spiritual and did I mention single."

Join us Monday, February 14th from 7pm - 10pm.
